THE HUMAN RIGHTS OF DOMESTIC WORKERS
HOPE IN HARD TIMES

CONFERENCE!

This event will bring together activists, scholars and policymakers in 3 plenary sessions to discuss the recent organizing efforts of domestic workers: a low-wage, transnational workforce largely made up of immigrant women.

This conference is deeply informed by the global dimensions of care work. It aims not only to discuss issues facing domestic workers, but to aid the current legislative efforts to include them in US labor law.

Funded by the Human Rights Institute and the Research Foundation at UConn. Organized by the Programs of Women's Studies, Puerto Rican and Latino Studies, and Asian American Studies.

Saturday, March 27: 9am-4pm
Thomas Dodd Research Center
University of Connecticut - Storrs

For more information: www.womens.studies.uconn.edu